

Biography

WENDY BROWN

Environment Director, International Association of Oil and Gas Producers (IOGP)

Wendy is currently Environment Director for the International Association of Oil and Gas Producers (IOGP), based in London, responsible for directing IOGP work on Environment, Low Carbon and Decommissioning, managing two science Joint Industry Programmes and undertaking regulatory advocacy and engagement on behalf of the upstream industry at the regional and international level. She trained as a biologist and has over 30 years' experience with the oil and gas industry. Wendy initially worked for 12 years as an environmental consultant, before joining the international energy major TOTAL in 2001 where she has held a variety of positions in environment or sustainable development based in Aberdeen, Calgary and Paris, including leading the global Upstream Environment team at TOTAL's headquarters until 2017, when she was seconded to IOGP.